

Your goal is not more posts or more busy work. Build one repeatable machine that turns helpful content into paid CV clients - and turns great clients into reviews and referrals.

THE SHORTCUT: Do not build TikTok, Instagram and your website as separate projects. Build one client journey. Every post, DM, website page, email, review and referral must move someone one step closer to buying.

1. Your one business machine

Every activity needs to support this journey.

ONE CALL TO ACTION: Every piece of content should have one simple next step. Use: “Get the free ATS CV checklist in my bio” or “Send your CV on WhatsApp for a review.” Do not make people guess what to do next.

What you are selling

You are not selling a document. You are selling confidence, clarity and a stronger application. Never promise a job or interview outcome that you cannot control.

Your position: Human-reviewed, ATS-ready CVs for South African job seekers - fast, clear and tailored to the role they want. Put your real price, turnaround time, process, examples, revision policy and honest reviews where people can see them.

Your three simple offers

1. CV Check / ATS Audit A free lead magnet or low-cost first step.	2. Job-Ready CV Your core fixed-price package with clear turnaround and revisions.	3. Interview-Ready Pack Premium: tailored CV, LinkedIn, cover letter or interview preparation.

2. The year in three moves

Do each phase in order. Scaling a weak process only creates more problems.

MONTHS 1-3: MAKE IT WORK

Build the foundation and prove demand

- Pick one main audience for 90 days. Example: graduates looking for their first office role. Specific beats broad.
- Fix the website: who it helps, price from, proof, process, FAQs, WhatsApp button and one clear call to action.
- Publish 3-5 short videos each week about real CV mistakes, examples, job-search advice and client proof.
- Set up a simple CRM, email follow-up, WhatsApp Business quick replies and a weekly scorecard.
- Ask every happy past client for a truthful Google review. Aim for your first 20 genuine reviews.

Win condition: You can reliably get leads, convert some into paid clients and deliver on time.

MONTHS 4-6: MAKE IT REPEATABLE

Turn your best work into a system

- Each week, answer one real client question. Turn it into a TikTok, Reel, carousel, website FAQ, email and WhatsApp reply template.
- Write a checklist for every repeated task. The third time you do something, record it and create an SOP.
- Publish two useful South Africa-focused search articles per month, based on actual client questions.
- Approach campuses, training providers, career coaches and small creators with a workshop or tracked referral partnership.
- Hire a part-time VA for admin and follow-up first, then an editor. Add CV writers only after quality systems are ready.

Win condition: You are no longer personally chasing every lead, editing every video or copying data between apps.

MONTHS 7-12: MAKE IT COMPOUND

Become the trusted local authority

- Host a monthly live CV clinic. Clip the best answers into short videos.
- Build a library of role-specific CV examples and job-search guides. Capture email addresses to access the best resources.
- Create permission-based case studies: client problem, what changed and their real outcome.
- Add the next offer only after your core CV service is profitable and high quality: group clinic, job-search package or B2B workshop.
- Run small retargeting ads only when your landing page and sales process already convert.

Win condition: Reviews, referrals, search traffic, content and partners create clients even when you do not post every day.

3. Your next 7 days

Do not try to do the whole year now. Finish these seven actions first.

- Choose your main 90-day audience. Write down your three packages, prices, scope and turnaround.
- Update your homepage with one call to action, pricing, process, proof, FAQs and a WhatsApp button.
- Create one free PDF: "20 CV Mistakes That Stop South Africans Getting Interviews."
- Set up a lead tracker: name, source, status, last contact, next follow-up, package, value and result.
- Ask past happy clients for a truthful Google review and permission to use an anonymous testimonial.
- Record ten short videos in one 90-minute session. Post three this week on TikTok and Instagram Reels.
- Contact 20 possible partners with one specific offer: a CV workshop, checklist or tracked referral code.

4. The only numbers that matter

Review these every Monday. Followers are nice; paid, happy clients are the business.

TRAFFIC Website visits. Which channel sends the right people?	LEADS Email sign-ups and WhatsApp conversations. Are people taking your next step?	SALES Lead-to-paid percentage and average order value. Are trust, pricing and follow-up working?
DELIVERY Turnaround time, quality score and revision rate. Can you grow without slipping?	TRUST New reviews and referral rate. Would clients recommend you?	PROFIT Cost to get a customer and gross margin. Is this channel worth scaling?

Your decision rules

- High traffic but few leads: improve the offer, call to action, landing page message and proof.
- Many leads but low sales: inspect response time, qualification, payment friction, testimonials and follow-up.
- Sales grow but delivery slips: pause promotion, fix capacity and quality assurance, then resume.
- A post gets views but no leads: treat it as awareness, not a business win.
- A channel brings profitable clients for four weeks in a row: give it more time, content or a measured ad test.

5. Use AI and delegation the right way

Use AI to go faster

- Turn one video into captions, hooks, carousel ideas, emails and FAQ drafts.
- Summarise client feedback into common questions and content ideas.
- Draft follow-ups and partnership outreach for you to approve.
- Help create checklists, templates and reporting summaries.

Never automate trust away

- Never invent CV achievements, qualifications, outcomes or testimonials.
- Never use fake followers, fake reviews or fake results.
- Do not put sensitive client CV data into AI tools without proper consent and privacy care.
- Keep human review before a CV is delivered.

What you keep

Positioning, pricing, standards, top partnerships, quality control, flagship content and weekly decisions.

What you delegate

CRM updates, follow-ups, client onboarding, document chasing, video editing, scheduling and standard production after you have documented a quality checklist.

Remember

Your advantage is not working ten times harder. It is turning every client insight into reusable content, every inquiry into an organised follow-up system, every great outcome into credible trust and every repeated task into an SOP that someone else or software can execute.
